

AfricaCom 2014 secures SkyVision as sponsor

Global communication provider, SkyVision Global Networks, will be sponsoring the AfricaCom 2014 Conference, taking place from 11-13 November 2013 in Cape Town. The company will further its presence by both presenting at AfricaCom and VSAT Africa conferences and actively participating in several key panel sessions.

AfricaCom is deemed the largest, most professional tech event in Africa that welcomes senior decision-makers from across the digital ecosystem. AfricaCom 2014 will be attended by close to 10,000 participants, many of whom are leaders in Africa's digital community, supported by 300+ guest speakers from Africa's telco sector. This event is described as the ideal platform to learn all about new technologies and trends in the communications arena specifically suited to the African market.

"We welcome the opportunity of participating in this leading industry event in Africa as a returning exhibitor and this year, as a proud sponsor," comments Dror Limor, SkyVision VP Sales & Marketing. "SkyVision is deeply rooted in Africa's fast-growing telco market and takes active means in bridging the digital divide across its rural areas. We view this event as the ideal venue for us to further expand our reach throughout the continent, meeting with customers, partners, prospects, and some of the industry's foremost decision-makers."
