

Broadband service, YahClick, to launch across West Africa

UAE-based global satellite operator, Yahsat, will showcase its flagship broadband service - YahClick - to partners and customers in the telco value chain at West Africa Com from 10-11 July 2018.

Farhad Khan, Yahsat chief commercial officer

Yahsat is a Gold sponsor of West Africa Com this year and its participation at the event is part of its expansion plan to launch YahClick this year in five new markets in West Africa.

The service will be available in Senegal and Gambia through service partner Arc Telecom, in Ivory Coast through CEE-NET, Isocel in The Benin, and through both Teledata and Comsys in Ghana.

Farhad Khan, chief commercial officer at Yahsat said: "Africa is a high-priority market for us, and with the commercial readiness of our third satellite Al Yah 3 we are now able to offer our broadband connectivity solutions to even more markets across the continent."

Back in 2012, Yahsat was the first to introduce Ka-Band satellite technology to Africa through YahClick. The service has proven to be an enabler of socio-economic development across Africa and other parts of the world where it is already present, be it by providing connectivity to remote schools and clinics, connecting rural public libraries or assisting government and non-government employees during their fieldwork.
