Bluegrass Digital are attending as the first South African company to do so. With over six years' experience working with Umbraco and over 70 implementations for large global brand sites, Bluegrass Digital will be in good company during the conference.

Umbraco Codegarden will be attended by 450 international delegates over three days and boasts 20 sessions, 26 highly-knowledgeable speakers, three workshops, one keynote address and enough coffee to fuel an army.

Bluegrass Digital will be represented by Mark Hawkins, Operations Director and Farhad Bheekoo, Senior Software Developer.

The Umbraco Codegarden is the best place for developers to learn about the newest features and possibilities in Umbraco and be inspired by those who have implemented large and small-scale sites using Umbraco. Codegarden's unique approach to conferencing is all about networking and problem-solving. The 'Open Space Technology' means that you are not limited to the scheduled topics, but can put your own passion on the agenda.

Attendees can also join the classroom workshops that will be hosted by the developers behind the Umbraco software - allowing you to get stuck-in and actively contribute to conversation. Themes that will be covered in the classroom sessions will be:

- Extend Umbraco with Angular JS: leverage javascript for beautiful back office extensions.
- Team development on Umbraco.io: take your workflow to the cloud.
- Umbraco Contour Masterclass: shedding new light on forms.
