

Zim media bill still in the balance

For the fourth time in two weeks the Zimbabwean government has failed to pass a controversial bill that would effectively silence its independent media. The legislature adjourned early yesterday after asking for more time to determine whether the proposed bill would violate constitutional rights.

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>