

Young artists produce master pieces

The competition, launched in November last year, encouraged readers to embrace their creativity and attracted over 700 entries in various categories from kids around South Africa.

A big round of applause for the masterpieces produced by the winners and finalists of the National Geographic Kids Young Artists Competition, proudly sponsored by Bostik. The winners and finalists have each won a backpack filled with Bostik goodies and a one-year subscription to NG KIDS. The three overall winners each receive a PlayStation console and games.
