

Day one of Festival of Media

The Festival of Media is the world's first global festival of media creativity and innovation.

In its forth year, it has become a must attend two day conference offering unrivalled networking opportunities at a conference and exhibition designed to showcase the best creative media thinking and explore emerging media opportunities. This year celebrates the second years of the inaugural Festival of Media Awards (FMAs), a global awards programme for the media industry designed to reflect the radical changes taking place in the communications business.
