

New medical website launched

Bizcommunity.com has moved into the medical field with our new site, www.bizcommunity.com. The new site is aimed at becoming the site of choice for information and news relevant to the field.

Bizcommunity.com has launched www.bizcommunity.com – destined to be the website of choice for medical professionals, pharmaceutical companies, medical, nursing and personnel placement agencies, health workers, advertising and marketing agencies in South Africa, Africa and beyond the continent.

Edited by Dr Bridget Farham (editor of the South African Medical Association's journal CME), www.bizcommunity.com will bring current news and information direct from source to our target market of health professionals across Africa.

We will cover:

- * News - breaking stories on health issues around the world
- * In-depth features on ground-breaking medical tests and trials
- * Press releases on new products – medicines, medical devices and so on
- * Social health campaigns, and issues surrounding them
- * Medical jobs around the world
- * News from research establishments

If you are in the medical field, in whatever capacity, if your agency is involved in advertising or marketing anything associated with the medical field, www.bizcommunity.com is your vehicle to find out what is happening in your field, and to inform those in the field about what you are doing.

We will provide a broad-based, yet targeted, vehicle that will inform health professionals around the world current developments, events and challenges, and a medium through which advertisers can gain exposure to the movers and shakers in the medical/health sector.
