

Air Seychelles introduces seyStream enhancing customer experience in-flight

Air Seychelles has announced the introduction of its new in-flight wireless streaming entertainment system across its A320neo and A320ceo aircraft effective 1 August 2019. The entertainment system, seyStream will be accessible bi-monthly via guests' personal devices including smartphones, laptops and tablets.

'seyStream' will feature a range of content including Hollywood latest release, classic movies, a range of TV programmes such as drama, comedy, documentary, lifestyle and sports as well as a dedicated music collection composed of international hits and creole tracks. The platform will also feature children's programmes and a variety of games.

seyStream will also entail an "About Air Seychelles" section featuring a destination guide, information regarding the airline's fleet plus its network, ancillary services available for bookings, the company corporate social responsibility programme and others. To track the actual position of the aircraft in real-time, the platform will also offer a 3D moving map display to provide guests with an interactive travel experience.

Air Seychelles, AirFi partner to offer wireless streaming inflight entertainment

Remco Althuis, chief executive officer of Air Seychelles says: "As part of our commitment to offering guests a greater choice when travelling, we are delighted to introduce seyStream. Our aim is to simplify the travelling experience of our guests and with 'seyStream' we expect to provide an entertainment platform that is of high quality, fast, reliable and easy to use in addition to delivering a sustainable service offering on board the aircraft.

"I am therefore appealing to all guests to bring their own devices that is their laptops, smartphones or tablets including headsets to freely access 'seyStream' when travelling on Air Seychelles."
