

Camps Bay hotel South Beach adds more luxury suites

10 sea-facing suites have been added to the South Beach, part of The Blue Views Collection, bringing the property's offering to 19 five-star self-catering suites.

The second phase of this Miami Beach-style property, designed by Greg Wright Architects, comprises six Deluxe Suites, two Classic Suites, one One-Bedroom Suite and a 107m² Penthouse Suite with a private pool.

Deluxe Suite

Comments Tony Stern, Founder of The Blue Views Collection: "We are pleased that this exceptional development has come together so well and that the building process ran smoothly. Camps Bay is an extremely popular tourist destination, especially during summer months. Therefore, our team worked tirelessly to ensure these additional suites would be completed in time for the busy festive season."

South Beach offers the privacy of self-catering accommodation, but the convenience of offerings such as daily housekeeping and a concierge service. Other amenities include retro and electric bicycles for excursions along the promenade, an in-house gym with Technogym equipment, and a choice of two swimming pools, including a newly introduced glass swimming alongside the roof top bar. The property features a number of artworks by Lionel Smit as well as sculptures by Marieke Prinsloo-Rowe.

Rooftop Pool

Concludes Stern: “In light of the ever-increasing number of tourists visiting the Cape, we look forward to offering even more guests an exceptional experience of this city.”

For more, visit: <https://www.bizcommunity.com>