"We are delighted to co-host an experience showcasing our incredible country and the talented and beautiful people who call it home. This is a small step in supporting the music and ecotourism industry after what has been a very trying time. This event is a reconnection back to nature, music and an opportunity to let your hair down and have fun in a safe environment." says Our African Footprints co-founder Domi Roux

Not only is this music festival about creating an incredible experience for the lucky guests, it is also working with Bayala to ensure that wildlife conservation is at the forefront of the event.
