

#YearOnTikTok 2021 unveils in SA

In 2021, over one billion people turned to TikTok to be entertained, find and share their joy with others, and learn new things. TikTok unveiled #YearOnTikTok 2021 in celebration of 2021-of-a-kind, which has been made possible by entertainment driven by its community.

This year-end celebration recognises talent and looks back on creativity, trends, creators, movements, and moments that made 2021 one to remember in Mzansi.

Placed under different categories, #YearOnTikTok 2021 ranges from popular songs that kept South Africans on their feet dancing to creators who became voices of change and celeb/creator breakthrough stars of 2021 – and everyone has played a part in bringing creativity and joy to a platform and a world that needed it.

"It's been incredible to see how Mzansi has continued to grow and support one another this year on the platform," says Boniswa Sidwaba, TikTok content operations manager, Africa.

"We've seen trends such as the recent Love Nwantiti and #Amapiano started and spread across 'For You' feeds on the app," says Sidwaba. Amapiano has taken the world by storm and not only kept the country dancing but has transcended the world giving South Africa its well-deserved supreme musical recognition with over 1.6 billion views on TikTok and the most popular music hashtag in South Africa.

"For us, 2021 was a year for connection and we've seen people on TikTok laughing together, entertaining us, starting cultural phenomena, and teaching us new things," says Vanessa Pappas, chief operating officer, TikTok.
