

Motherland: Fort Salem

Issued by Showmax 5 Jun 2020

- · Exec produced by Will Ferrell and Adam McKay, who produced Succession
- Already renewed for a second season
- Starring Cape Town actress Jessica Sutton as one of the three leads
- 96% audience rating, Rotten Tomatoes
- "A riveting supernatural drama" Den of Geek
- "Ridiculously entertaining" AP
- First on Showmax

The first season of fantasy drama Motherland: Fort Salem is now available to binge first on Showmax.

More than 300 years ago, Sarah Alder made a deal to stop the slaughter of her kind. She pledged her people to the service and defence of America for generations to come. In return, the persecution and the killings stopped. The Salem witch trials ended, and the country gained a powerful new weapon – an army of witches.

Motherland: Fort Salem is a young adult dystopian fantasy that follows three young women – Tally, Abigail and Raelle – from basic training to deployment, as they learn to fight terrorist threats with supernatural tactics and the potent magic of their voices. Thrown together in their unit, the three come from very different backgrounds, but they have one thing in common: they are witches, born and raised for battle... whether they like it or not.

Tally

Among the three leads is Cape Town actress Jessica Sutton, who was in The Kissing Booth and also stars in the upcoming Showmax Original Rogue, opposite Megan Fox.

Her character, Tally Craven, is the innocent of the group. Wide-eyed and enthusiastic, she sees the army as her calling, a chance to save lives. When her conscription paper arrives, it's the moment she's been waiting for for 18 years. All she has to do is say the words.

"This is the pinnacle moment," says Jessica. "For Tally, she's already decided that this is what she's going to do. She's going to conscribe, against her mother's wishes."

Raelle

Raelle is played by Taylor Hickson, who was Petra, aka Goth Girl, in Deadly Class, and Meghan Orlovsky in Deadpool. Like Tally, Raelle has been anticipating this moment, but to her, it's a suicide mission. Seething with pent-up fury at the injustice of her fate, Raelle sees no way out.

"A medal drops from out of the ceiling and we have to speak the words to basically conscript ourselves into the military," says Taylor. But in that moment, "Raelle's mainly thinking about her mother and how she lost her mother to war, and now she's being condemned to essentially the same fate."

Abigail

Newcomer Ashley Nicole Williams plays the A-type Abigail, for whom the army was never a choice. It's a matter of honour, of destiny, and failure is not an option.

"I come from a long lineage of generals," the actress says of her character. "That's really big for Abigail. She has to. She has to go through basics, she has to go to war college and she needs to fight and be the very best she can."

A matriarchal militia

While there's plenty of action, confrontation, brutal basics-training, unit pressures and barracks shenanigans, Motherland: Fort Salem has something other rookie-soldier shows don't: magic – fierce and female.

"Right off the top you can see it's a lot more female driven," Taylor explains. While that does mean less testosterone-fuelled bonding rituals, the competition and conflict gets plenty ugly.

"It's no longer the boys fighting on the frontlines, but the girls," says Jessica. "We're not the cackling old crones around the cauldron. We are the protectors. We are the warriors. We have these immense powers, and that's coming from language and sound, as well as sex."

"The world of Motherland is basically our world flipped upside down," says Ashley Nicole. "And we're the powerful ones, kicking ass and taking names."

Motherland: Fort Salem has a 96% audience rating on Rotten Tomatoes. Associated Press calls the Freeform show "ridiculously entertaining"; Den of Geek says it's "a riveting supernatural drama"; and ComicBook.com says it's "inventive and ambitious."

Directed by the likes of Steven A. Adelson (Riverdale), Emmy nominee David Grossman (Desperate Housewives), and BAFTA nominee Haifaa Al-Mansour (Wadjda), Motherland: Fort Salem is exec produced by the team of Will Ferrell and Adam McKay, who've brought us shows like Succession.

Motherland: Fort Salem was recently renewed for a second season. Series creator Eliot Laurence (Claws), says he was "blown away by the love we've gotten from our fans, whose excitement and passion played a massive part in this renewal," adding, "Thank you, witches!"

Watch the trailer:

Watch Motherland: Fort Salem on Showmax: https://www.showmax.com/eng/tvseries/mgrluhv6-motherlandfort-salem

About Showmax

Showmax is an internet TV service. What sets Showmax apart is a unique combination of hit African content, first and exclusive international series, the best kids' shows, and live sport. For a single monthly fee, get unlimited access. Start and stop when you want. No ads. Cancel anytime - there's no contract.

Stream Showmax using apps for smart TVs, smartphones, tablets, computers, media players and gaming consoles. Manage data consumption using the bandwidth capping feature. No internet? No problem - download shows to smartphones and tablets to watch later offline.

Showmax was born in 2015. The service is available throughout sub-Saharan Africa and to selected diaspora markets worldwide. For a free trial, visit www.showmax.com.

- " Showmax named Marketing Team of the Year at the 2022 Promax Africa Awards 14 Nov 2022
- "Showmax Pro launches promotional offer from R199 a month 19 Oct 2022
- "Every South African needs to watch this." Critics rave about Steinheist doccie 27 Sep 2022
- "Best reactions from first-time SAFTA nominees 19 Jul 2022
- * Trailer alert: first look at Tarryn Wyngaard and Thapelo Mokoena in the Showmax Original survival horror Pulse 24 May 2022

Showmax

Showmax is internet TV that lets you stream or download the best series, movies, kids' shows and documentaries. Watch Showmax now on your phone, tablet, laptop or TV.

Profile | News | Contact | Twitter | Facebook | RSS Feed

For more, visit: https://www.bizcommunity.com