

ANPI announces semi-finalist judging panel

The semi-finalist judging panel for this year's Africa Netpreneur Prize Initiative (ANPI) have been announced.

The Africa Netpreneur Prize Initiative (ANPI) is a prize competition for African entrepreneurs spearheaded by the Jack Ma Foundation. For the next ten years, the ANPI will be hosted across Africa culminating in an annual finale where ten finalists will compete in a pitch competition.

The ANPI aims to support and inspire the next generation of African entrepreneurs across all sectors, who are building a more sustainable and inclusive economy for the future.

Applications for the first ANPI officially closed 30 June 2019 and nearly 10,000 applications from 50 African countries were received. The semi-finalist judging panel consists of seven esteemed entrepreneurs, investors, and business people from across the continent.

The panel will evaluate the semi-finalists and select the top ten finalists for the ANPI. These 10 finalists will go on to pitch Jack Ma and other influential judges for the chance to be awarded a share of US$1 million in total grand prize money during the finale event in Accra, Ghana in November 2019.

"We are thrilled with the response and the quality of the applications we have received. We look forward to the next phase where this panel of illustrious judges will help decide on our finalists," said Jason Pau, senior advisor for International Programs for the Jack Ma Foundation.

"Our goal when selecting the roster of judges for the ANPI was to find true representatives of the diverse entrepreneurial and business landscape in Africa. The judges we have selected are true leaders in their industries and bring vastly different backgrounds, accomplishments, and skillsets to the table. Their feedback will be invaluable and will set the tone for the competition. We wish both the applicants and judges the best of luck as we make our way to the grand finale in Accra," concludes Pau.

"It's impressive to see the passion coming from across Africa. I'm inspired by the quality of applications received and to see how young and old people are making a difference through the resilience and grit shown by their focus on the community," said Sam Gichuru, founder and CEO of Nailab. "I am looking forward to seeing the finalists for the first year. To the entrepreneurs who missed the application deadline, be ready to apply in the coming year."

Meet the judges

Bethlehem Tilahun Alemu

Bethlehem Tilahun Alemu

She is the founder and CEO of soleRebels, a growing African footwear brand; the founder of premium coffee brand, Garden of Coffee, which launched in July 2016; founder of Perimeter Consulting, a strategic consulting service housing Made By Ethiopia, a public-private partnership with the Footwear Distribution and Retailers of America.

Most recently, she launched GIZA digital, a payment and e-commerce platform and NoodFoods, a franchise business that uses locally sourced fruits and vegetables to create snacks. She is also recognised as a World Economic Forum Young Global Leader, is a member of the World Economic Forum's Global Expert Network and was named Entrepreneur of the Year in 2012 by The World Economic Forum. She is also a Forbes World's 100 Most Powerful Women and one of CNN's Top 12 Women Entrepreneurs of The Last Century.

Fatoumata Ba

Fatoumata Ba is a technology entrepreneur and venture capital investor currently serving as the founder and executive chair of Janngo and managing partner of Janngo Capital. In Ivory Coast, she served as founder and CEO, as well as managing director in Nigeria and member of the executive committee at the Africa level of Jumia, a tech unicorn in Africa now listed on the NYSE.

She has been awarded several distinctions including The World Economic Forum 'Young Global Leader', Choiseul 100 Africa 'Economic Leaders of Tomorrow', Forbes Africa '30 under 30' and the Aenne Burda Award for visionary leadership, optimism and courage alongside Marissa Mayer, Arianna Huffington and Viviane Reding. She serves on the Board of SouthBridge Investment Bank, on the Board and Investment Committee of Creadev Africa, on the Council of Women in Africa and on the Global Future Council on the New Economic Agenda of the World Economic Forum.

Marième Diop

Marième Diop currently serves as an investment manager at Orange Digital Ventures Africa - Orange Group's €50 million venture capital fund dedicated to African startups. Through this role, she's actively involved in launching and scaling investment vehicles and direct investments targeted at technology startups across Africa. She is passionate about supporting founder teams of early-stage technology companies in building Africa's next business champions.

In 2018, Marième also founded an angel network for francophone startups called the Dakar Network Angels (DNA). She is also a Fellow of President Obama's flagship program 'Young African Leaders Initiative', World Economic Forum Global Shaper, and member of the GSMA Programme Leadership Group "PLG."

Hasan Haider

Hasan Haider is a partner at 500 Startups, the most active venture capital firm in the world, based in Silicon Valley, with more than 2,000 investments in more than 50 countries and $400 million in AuM. He heads up the firm's practice in the MENA region, with the Arabic speaking market being a core area of focus. 500 Startups has invested in over 100 startups in the region over the course of the last four years, including Wuzzuf, Jamalon and fetchr.

He was also the co-founder and CEO of Tenmou, the first business angel's organisation in Bahrain and one of the first in the MENA region. His work in developing angel investment in emerging markets through Tenmou has been picked up as a case study by the World Bank and is taught to Entrepreneurship Policy makers at Babson College.

Peter Orth is a founder and managing partner of 4DX Ventures, an Africa focused venture capital fund. Prior to founding 4DX Ventures, he was an investor for over a decade, with work spanning global macro investing, public and private equity investing, as well as overall portfolio and risk management strategy design. Orth has held investment roles at Bridgewater Associates (Emerging Markets Research and Lead China Analyst), Adakin Capital (public and private equity investing at an NYC-based family office), and JPMorgan (investment banking).

Peter Orth

In addition, he ran strategy and business development at Mirror Labs, a venture-backed business in the Blockchain space. He graduated from Tufts University in 2007 with degrees in Quantitative Economics and International Relations.

René Parker

René Parker is the managing director and CEO of RLabs, a global social enterprise with a strong focus on community-driven innovation and social change. RLabs currently has activities in Africa, United Kingdom, Europe, Asia and North and South America impacting more than 10 million people across 23 countries. She has played a leading role in transforming RLabs into a global social enterprise from the humble beginnings of a community project in Cape Town.

Parker served as a board member of the Living Labs in Southern Africa (LLiSA) network where she fulfilled the portfolio of capacity building, community development and communications. She is a founding member of the Western Cape government youth development network currently focused on driving youth economic empowerment through technology, entrepreneurship and innovation. She is also the co-founder of RLabs Women, an organisation that aims to build technology and innovation capacity amongst women in marginalised communities. She also serves in an advisory capacity to several international universities and has done extensive work with organisations such as the Finnish Foreign Ministry, GIZ, AfriLabs, i4Policy, UNWomen, Naspers, NedBank and Accenture.

Fred Swaniker

Fred Swaniker is on a mission to bring better leadership to Africa and the world. He is the founder of the African Leadership Group - an ecosystem of organisations that collectively aims to develop three million entrepreneurial leaders for Africa by 2035. Swaniker previously worked as a McKinsey consultant in South Africa before earning an MBA from Stanford and becoming an entrepreneur. In 2019, he was recognised by TIME magazine on its list of the 100 most influential people in the world.

Swaniker has also been recognised as a World Economic Forum Young Global Leader; an Echoing Green Fellow; a Fellow of the Aspen Institute's Global Leadership Network; a TED Fellow; and was named one of Forbes Magazine's top ten young 'power men' in Africa in 2011. In addition to his MBA from Stanford, he has an undergraduate degree from Macalester College and honorary doctorates from Middlebury College, Macalester College, and Nelson Mandela University. He sits on several boards and advisory boards - including the Graca Machel Trust, AGRA and Andela. He also sits on Nestle's Creating Shared Value Council.