Algerie Telecom launches Nooonbooks, an Arabic digital library

ALGIERS: A new digital library "Nooonbooks" containing over 30,000 books exclusively in Arabic has been launched by Algerie Telecom (AT), announced its CEO Azouaou Mehmel on Friday...

"After the digital library "Fimaktabati" with exclusively French content, and then a digital academic library containing French works, AT has launched an Arabic digital library named 'Nooonbooks'," Mehmel said in an interview with APS.

"The library, available at www.nooonbooks.dz, will allow access to the latest publications of hundred of Arabic-language publishing houses," he said.

The digital library "Nooonbooks" comprises over 30,000 books on exact sciences, management, social sciences, law, personal development and general knowledge.

Nooonbooks is available by annual subscription priced at DZD 2,400 via one-year licence cards.

Mehmel said that his department is currently working on a project of an online library with an exclusively national content.

For more, visit: https://www.bizcommunity.com